Training to meet your needs

This course is designed for participants new to the area of public procurement and those unfamiliar with the UK's new Procurement Act. It aims to provide a foundation of the key concepts, terms, processes and activities necessary to undertake a successful procurement. It will provide a sound background of knowledge and practice to allow the participant to interact and effectively assist public procurement projects particularly under the new UK Procurement Act. The training is delivered by experts who have a strong background in public sector contracting and whole life commercial contract management.

Course outline

The course explains the overarching thinking and objectives of the Procurement Act. It walks through the different procurement approaches that can be used, as well as what needs to happen at every step of the procurement cycle. The event will also help to demystify common procurement terminology and provide guidance on compiling, evaluating and awarding tenders.
